

fashion show

Aspiring young fashion designers — very young fashion designers — will bring their talents to a local version of the hit TV reality show "Project Runway" tomorrow.

The big finale to "Project Fabricland" — it's hosted by the North Plainfield store — will be a fashion show held at 2 p.m. at North Plainfield High School, 34 Wilson Ave., North Plainfield.

Suede, pictured below, a semifinalist from the fifth season of "Project Runway," will kick off the competition, which features designs created by New Jersey students ages 10 to 17. The kids have taken advanced classes at the Sewing School at Fabricland for the past three months in preparation for the big event.

Tickets are $12 at the high school's doors, but may be purchased for $8 before the event at Fabricland (855 Route 22, North Plainfield), online at fabricland.com or by phone at (908) 755-4700.

— Lisa Irizarry

